'Pig Woman' Unable To Testify Today

MRS. JANE GIBSON IS ILL IN HOSPITAL BUT IS IMPROVING

State's Star Unable To Give Version Of Murders

JAMES MILLS ON THE STAND

Husband of the Choir Singer Tells Of Disappearance

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Mrs. Jane Gibson was too sick to come to court today but the Hall-Mills case went ahead without her.

Mrs. Gibson, expected to testify as an eye witness, of the slaying of the minister and choir singer four years ago, was reported somewhat improved over her condition last night, but there was no indication from the Somerville hospital when she will be able to testify, if at all.

Mrs. Gibson has been unofficially designated as the state's star witness.

James Mills, husband of the slain woman, Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills, testified just before the lunch recess. He was calm and told his story of his last sight of his wife, in a dispassionate voice. In contrast to the lack of emotion displayed by Mills was the first apparent slight penetration of Mrs. Hall's composure. As the church sexton told of the visit of Mrs. Hall to his house, with the news that her husband had not returned, to learn also that his wife had not come home, the rector's widow seemed on the verge of tears. She at once recovered her self-possession.

Mills remained on the stand only a short time. He quoted Mrs. Hall as saying in reply to a question as to the possibility that her husband and his wife eloped, as saying: "No, I know they are dead, or they've come home."

The trial moved slowly and without incident, except indirectly from the witness stand.

The belligerent special prosecutor, Alexander Simpson and the suave defense counsel, Clarence E. Case, exchanged thrusts at intervals in connection with questions on examinations.

The defendants entered the courtroom a few minutes before the veteran court-crier, John Bunn, called who had business with the court to "draw near." All were well poised as usual. Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and her brother Henry Stevens, were almost stern in their dignity. Willie Stevens, the other brother, with the fireman's complex, was affable. He shook hands with members of the defense counsel and several friends before taking his seat and later rose to greet others with claps of the hand.

Mrs. H. and Henry Stevens did no hand-shaking. Although Mrs. Gibson is not available at the moment, Prosecutor Simpson has another witness on whose testimony he relies, in waiting.

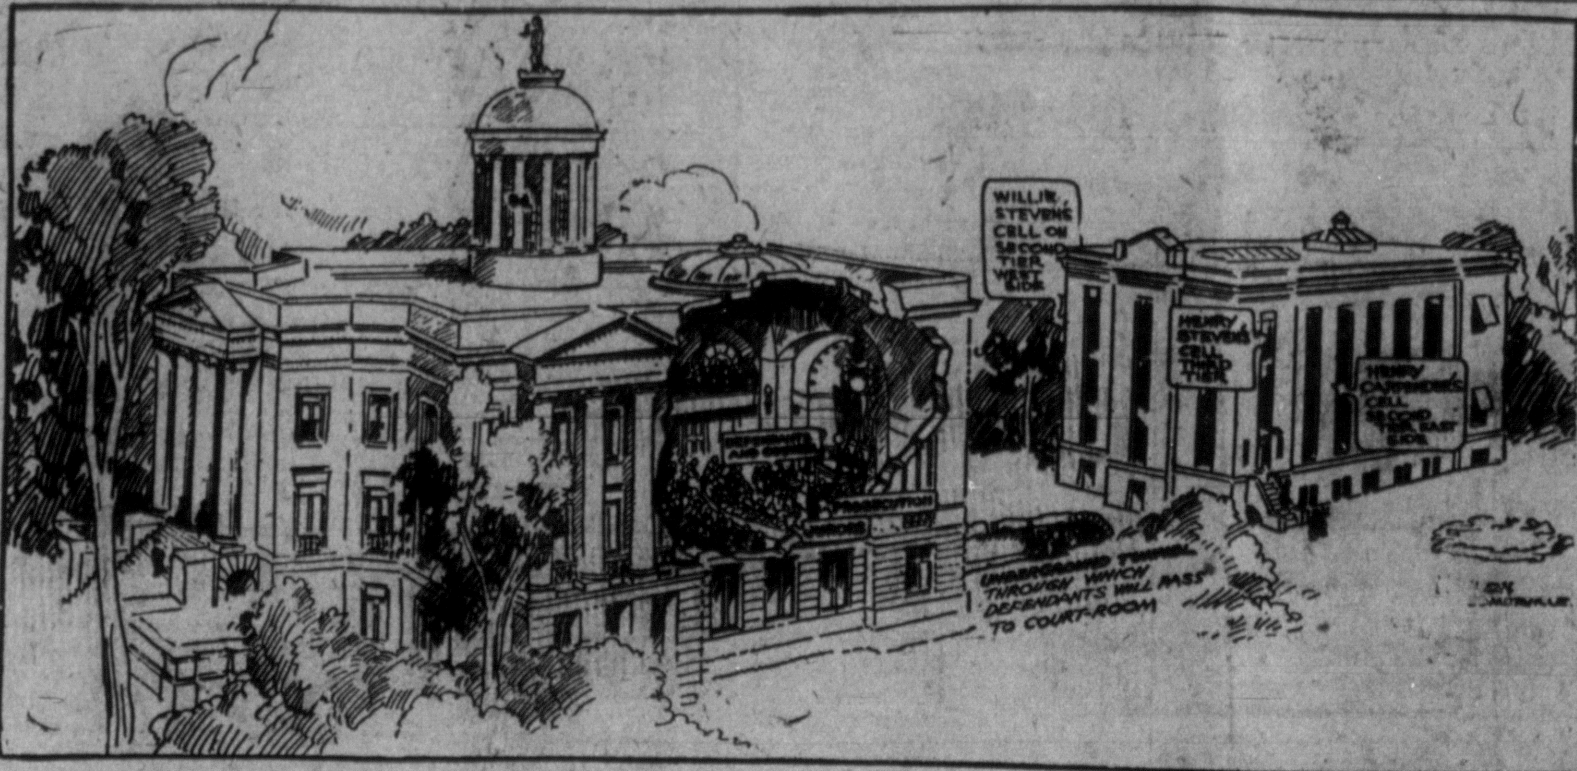

Henry L. Dickman, former New Jersey state policeman, reached Somerville in the custody of federal officers. Dickman was serving a sentence in the west for conviction on a charge of deserting from the army when he was released.

Announcement that The Daily is going under a new rule for display advertising is already finding favor with local merchants. A number of advertisers in today's issue of the paper brought their copy in Thursday afternoon, they are as anxious to give reader service as the newspaper for they realize it means greater results from advertising for them.

The new rule will be in effect November 9 for November 10 publication all display advertising must be in this office by six o'clock on the afternoon of November 9.

SEVERAL ARE DEAD IN A SEVERE QUAKE

Nicaraguan Cities are Shaken By Tremor During Morning

(By Associated Press)
MANAGUA, Nic., Nov. 5.—Several persons were killed and severe property damage was caused early today when the worst earthquake since that of April, 1898, occurred. The duration of the quake was 50 seconds and the tremors were general throughout Nicaragua. The national palace and the cathedral in Managua were damaged badly by the shock.

The quake was extremely severe in the department of Masaya, near the Masaya volcano. Many houses were destroyed at Santiago.

SAN JUAN, Nov. 5.—(AP)—San Juan was shaken by a severe earthquake at two o'clock this morning. The movement lasted for about 30 seconds. No serious damage has been reported. Dispatches say the towns of Granada and Rivas also felt the shock, but that no damage was caused.

Sex Plays Drug; Melodrama Wins

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 5.—(INS)—Sex plays on both stage and screen are becoming a drug on the market, Balboni, First National director, declared today. "Melodrama will soon have full sway." "Problem and sex plays run in cycles. They interest for a time and then become passe because they deal with only certain phases of life. Melodrama typifies real life; it includes every phase, that is the great difference. "Melodrama changes in aspect, but not in spirit. The bewhiskered villain, mortgage-on-the-farm melodramas of 15 years ago are foolish today because living and working conditions have changed."

Special Edition Fully Discussed

The special edition of the Albany-Decatur Daily, recommended by the Board of Directors of the Kiwanis club as an activity to provide funds for the charity program, was fully discussed by the membership of the club Thursday evening. Official action was deferred until a future date, some viewing the plan as excellent and others not giving favor to the idea. It is probable that other activities will be discussed and a decision given at a later date.

'INTIMIDATION' RUMORS ARE HEARD IN DAVIS TRIAL TODAY

Tall, Unidentified White Man Sought By Court Following Testimony Of Negro Witness.

BIRMINGHAM, Nov. 5.—(AP)—A tall, unidentified man, who witnesses in the trial of Charles R. Davis, former warden of Flat Top prison, charged attempted to intimidate them, while they were waiting in the court house to go on the witness stand for the state, was ordered arrested and brought before Judge John P. McCoy today immediately before court recessed for the noon hour.

Rumors of intimidation in the Davis trial were brought to a sharp focus when Dick Montgomery, negro, who served at the Flat Top prison at the time of the death of Knox, took the stand. After Montgomery had testified Solicitor Davis referred to grand jury notes of his former testimony and called attention to discrepancies. Solicitor Davis inquired if someone had threatened Montgomery and the latter replied that a "tall white man" who wore a grey suit and a grey slouch hat had endeavored to have several negroes, who had been summoned by the state, to "bundle themselves up and beat it."

This statement brought a sharp response from the defense when Attorneys Beddow and Locke insisted that someone who was masquerading as a friend of the defense, apparently was responsible.

Defense counsel announced that the defendant had posted a reward for the apprehension of this man, whom it was charged, was attempting to make it appear that the defense was stooping to underhand methods in the trial.

"Your honor, the defense wishes to have this matter thoroughly investigated," declared Beddow.

Methodists wait on appointments

Monday Is Date For Assigning Places For Pastors

Albany-Decatur, Austinville and Fairview Methodists are anxiously awaiting word from the North Alabama conference, gathered at Tuscaloosa, waiting to see if any of the local pastors will be transferred and new pastors sent here to fill their places.

Unanimous approval of Methodist ministers serving here was given before the opening date of conference and church members are hoping that all pastors will be returned. It is not believed that appointments will be known before Monday night.

The conference moved quietly on its way yesterday, receiving 15 young ministers into the conference and transacting routine business. Many addresses featured the Thursday program.

Hopes Rock For Road Not Delayed

At least one north Alabama resident hopes that the story carried in the Daily several days ago, to the effect officials hoped to have the Lawrence county road rocked before winter, is true to the last degree. That person is J. H. Day, who operates a bus line between the Twin Cities and Moulton. "I certainly hope the Daily story is correct," he said, "although I cannot see how they can finish the rocking under two or three months. A person who passes over this road, as I do, about four times a day, could not do otherwise than pull for the complete authenticity of the Daily article."

NOT MUCH DOING AT JAIL

"No, there's nothing doing much here," was the response of Deputy Sheriff Ben Poole today when asked of the activities of sheriff's forces over the county. "We've been so busy with courts that we haven't had much time to do anything else," was the reason Deputy Poole gave for things being quiet in jail circles.

APPOINTMENTS TO BE READ MONDAY

Church Conference Is On Third Day In Tuscaloosa

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Nov. 5.—(AP)—The North Alabama conference of the Methodist Episcopal church South, meeting here for its 57th annual session, began its third day with a business session this morning.

Visitors will be shown the city this afternoon.

Appointments for the coming year will be announced next Monday. Sunday the ministers attending the conference will fill all the pulpits in the city, and Bishop Hoyt Dobbs is to preach Sunday morning at the First Methodist church, his only sermon during the sessions of the conference.

The Bishop announced that of more than 360 pastoral charges in the district, all but 28 had turned in their reports for the past year.

Neil Harlowe Is Dead In Florida

Neil Harlowe, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Harlowe, died at eight o'clock Thursday morning in Miami, Fla., according to word reaching here. The body will arrive here Saturday and funeral services will be held some Sunday the hour to be announced later. Mr. and Mrs. Harlowe were former residents of Albany.

French Race Track Gamblers Are Behind Bars After Their Clean-Up

International News Service
PARIS, Nov. 5.—Several employees of French race tracks found a sure fire system of beating the betting game. They won once too often and now they are behind the bars awaiting trial for fraud.

All those arrested were employees of the pari mutuel system. They worked their game at all the race tracks, Longchamp, Maisons, Laffitte, Tremblay, Chantilly and Auteuil.

The system was to await the result of a race. In the general confusion following immediately after posting of the winner, they managed to slip out a few tickets on the winning or placing horse. They paid themselves

BELIEVES BRIDGE TO BE FINISHED EARLY IN SPRING

Hinds Says The Koss Contract Will Be Ended In March

PROGRESS NOW IS VERY RAPID

First Concrete Today Poured On Arch On North Side

The Tennessee river bridge is completed from the south bank of the river to the place where the bascule span will be put in place by the Mt. Vernon Bridge company.

Workmen of the Koss Construction company today were tearing away the temporary structure into which the concrete was poured and will put in place the hand-rails which will guard the sidewalks for pedestrians on each side of the 20-foot roadway.

Concrete today was being poured on the first pier and arch-way on the northern side of the bascule span and excavation was being made for the adjoining piers.

Since the arrival here of Engineer Hinds, now in charge of the construction of the project, rapid progress has been made and a crew of 130 men now is employed by the Koss construction company. This includes a small crew of men engaged in construction on the night shift.

Mr. Hinds today expressed the belief that the Koss company's part of the bridge will be finished by March. This does not include the part of the contract allotted to the Mt. Vernon Bridge company for the bascule span, work on which has not yet been started, nor does it include the construction of either of the bridge approaches. The approach on the Limestone county side already is under construction and belief was expressed here today that construction of the approach on this side will be underway within five or six weeks. The contract is expected to be let next month.

Equipment Afloat
Hurrying its work along with a maximum of speed to insure careful workmanship, the Koss company now has a great part of its equipment afloat, in order that the derricks, concrete mixers and other machinery can be placed at the scene of the pier and arch construction. This eliminates much hauling by tram-car and is saving a great deal of time.

Movable cranes and additional derricks recently have been added to the equipment, as well as additional boilers to furnish steam for the pumps and other machinery.

Concrete was being poured today for the first time beyond the bascule span on the Limestone side and if weather conditions continue favorable, the Koss company will have completed its contract by early spring, was the opinion given to the people of the Twin Cities by Mr. Hinds.

It is estimated that during the last year they cleaned up at least $100,000. Since in pari mutuel betting the amount paid on a winning horse depends upon the total amount of money placed on that horse, this sum was obtained at the expense of the bona fide betters. Odds should be appreciably higher with the grafting gang cleared out.

SENATOR NORRIS FLAYS MACHINE METHODS THAT BROUGHT VARE VICTORY

Coldest Night Not Recorded By Observers

Though local citizens today believed that Thursday night was the coldest of the year, official records given by Mrs. A. H. Irons, government observer, did not show such belief to be well founded. "The coldest night of the year," said Mrs. Irons, "was on the night of November 2 when we had that killing frost. The record for that night was 29, last night it was 32."

A maximum temperature of 56 degrees was recorded today at noon as the sun warmed overcast backs to such an extent as to almost force the removal.

TRAFFIC CODE TO BE CLEARED

Council Expected To Clear Situation At Meeting Tonight

Question in the minds of drivers regarding the observance of "Stop" signals in the city of Albany likely will be cleared at tonight's session. Drivers have been observing "Stop" signals when approaching Second avenue, main thoroughfare of the business section, but they have not watched the other signals closely, not being entirely clear regarding the enforcement of the traffic law.

Officers of the city of Albany will continue to enforce the present system until new action is taken by the council, or the council decides to uphold the present law.

Skeleton Found On The Bee Line

Finding of a skeleton by a construction crew at work on the Bee Line highway, near Cullman, is reported by the Cullman Tribune which says:

Wednesday afternoon while the men in the employ of the Turner Construction company were operating the steam shovel on the work of grading the Bee Line Highway, one mile north of Hartsville, the skull of a human being was unearthed as the shovel plowed up through the bank. The skull was discovered by the dirt falling from a hole in the side of the bank revealing a hat and skull.

Upon discovery of the skull no further scraping was done in that spot until Sheriff Lambert was notified and went down on Thursday morning to have the skeleton gathered up and buried in a proper place.

It is learned that the older settlers in that community remember of the dead body of a man having been found on the railroad right-of-way in this cut and of it having been buried by the railroad employees on the right-of-way.

Anticipates More Building In Spring

"I anticipate quite a bit of building in the spring months of 1927, perhaps before that time," was the expression today of a well known business man and builder. He placed his prediction upon the foundation here of the Connecticut Mills company and the number of requests he has had concerning homes and available home sites.

Routine Session Held By Council

A short routine session was held by the Decatur city council last night. Reports were heard, it being the first meeting of the new month, and various phases of the city affairs discussed informally without action.

Votes Are Counted Prior To The Election

BALLOT WAS NOT HONEST

Nebraskan Makes These And Other Allegations

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—(AP)—The drive against seating William S. Vare, Republican, as the junior Senator from Pennsylvania in the 70th Congress has opened.

Senator Norris, Nebraska, who spoke in Pennsylvania in behalf of William B. Wilson, the Democratic candidate, because of alleged excessive campaign expenditures by the Republicans, declared here that Senator Vare, although technically elected, had been repudiated by the "honest patriotic people" of the state and that the Philadelphia "machine" had functioned as usual, the results in some precincts having been announced before any votes were cast.

Meanwhile the committee of 70, an unofficial body in Philadelphia, was preparing to make an investigation in a number of Philadelphia precincts, where Mr. Wilson was not credited with a single vote. Members of the committee attached much importance to official returns which credit Wilson with no votes in 44 divisions in that city and with only one vote in each of a number of other divisions.

Discussion of the Pennsylvania situation is expected to be renewed here Wednesday when the Senate reconvenes as a court of impeachment to try George W. English, federal judge for the eastern district of Illinois, on charges of usurpation of power. In view of Judge English's resignation yesterday and the decision of the house manager to recommend that the proceedings be dropped, it is believed that the Senate session will be only perfunctory. Most senators here now agreed that the senate would accept the house recommendations.

Delayed and scattering returns overnight failed to change the party lineup in the 70th house which remained at Republicans, 236; Democrats, 195; Farmer-Labor, two; Socialist, one, and undecided, one. A total of 218 is necessary for a majority. The Senate of the 70th Congress will show 47 Republicans, 47 Democrats and one Farmer-Labor with one vacancy from Maine to be filled in a special election on November 29.

Senator Norris, declaring that the "country should be told the truth about Pennsylvania," asserted that it is apparent that no honest election was held and that the results were an impossibility except through "fraudulent manipulation."

Mr. Vare, Senator Norris added, "ran several hundred thousand votes behind the Republican ticket and outside the city of Philadelphia, where the Vare machine is supreme, Mr. Vare was defeated by 50,000 majority."

Illustrating what he designated the "methods followed by this machine," he said that "in 76 voting precincts in Philadelphia casting in round number 17,000 votes, Mr. Wilson is given a total of 32 votes. Does any sane patriotic citizen of the United States think for a moment..."

BUY AT HOME

One of the strongest arguments in favor of a poor condition of business may be heard when people talk of buying so-and-so at such-and-such a price out of town. People no longer buy from a sense of loyalty, to be sure, but the out of town purchasers should feel a hesitancy in letting others know of the weakness.

Loyalty begins at home, give the home merchant the first chance, give him the chance to please. He is here to help you in running your city, pay your bills, pay your officials, he is the first to be called upon in every sort of drive. Treat him fair—Trade at Home.

Lawrence H. Lee To

Legal Adviser

Though greater interest abounds in the apparent selection of Judge Woolsey Pinnell, Tuscaloosa, as state highway chief, by Governor-elect Bibb Graves, other appointments likewise come in for a share of public interest.

According to the state capital bureau of the Birmingham Age-Herald the governor-elect is buying himself with his list of appointments prior to the time he goes into office, thus removing the usual office filling dilemma when official duties call.

According to the Age-Herald the following appointments are likely:

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 5.—Col. Bibb Graves, governor-elect, let it be known today that he has offered the position of chairman of the state tax commission to John D. McNeel of Birmingham. Mr. McNeel is former collector of internal revenue and is head of the firm of McNeel, Danforth, and O'Rear, tax experts which firm is employed by a number of the large industrial companies of the state to handle their tax questions.

In addition to his statement that no one had authority to quote him regarding the tax commission, Col. Graves declined to give any information about the appointment of his private secretary. George Lewis Bailes, Birmingham attorney and a strong supporter of Col. Graves, has been asked to accept the position according to information in political circles. But he indicated that he will be unable to do so. Judge C. E. McCall, who has been chief examiner of public accounts of Alabama since the days of Governor Comer, will be retained in this position. Altho the formal appointment has not been tendered, Col. Graves stated that he will offer the appointment to Judge McCall and is hopeful that he will accept. Judge McCall is the father of Captain Charlie C. McCall, who was elected attorney general Tuesday.

Lee Appointment Seen

Lawrence H. Lee, law partner of Col. Graves, will be legal adviser to the governor. This position is now held by Judge James J. Mayfield, who was defeated for United States senator by Judge Black Judge Mayfield will retire from any position at the capitol after a long service. He was code commissioner in 1907 and later became a member of the supreme court of Alabama. He resigned from this position in 1919 in order that he might again become code commissioner and prepare the code which was adopted in 1923 and is now in effect.

Mr. Lee has been a prominent figure in the official life of Montgomery. He served many years as reported, of decisions for the supreme court and court of appeals, a position he vacated to become a member of the law firm of Lee and Graves.

Governor-elect Graves probably will name Hubert H. Montgomery of Anniston state superintendent of banks, succeeding A. E. Jackson, who was appointed by Governor Brandon. Mr. Montgomery served in this position during the administration of Governor Kilby and was urged for reappointment by bankers of Alabama. Altho one report has been to the effect that Governor-elect Graves is also considering Judge C. E. Thomas of Prattville for the position, information in Montgomery is that Judge Thomas will be given a position as a member of the state highway commission.

Richard M. Hobbie, member of the board of directors of the Alabama Power company, and president of the H. M. Hobbie Grocery of Montgomery, has declined the position of chairman of the state board of administration, which has control of the state convict department and handles all purchases for the state government. Mr. Hobbie stated that his business would suffer if he accepted a state position and he did not care to make the personal sacrifice.

Many Positions Open
Among other important positions to be filled are members of the state tax commission, associate member of the state board of administration, state insurance commissioner, adjutant general of the military department and state fire marshal. Mr. Graves, in a statement Tuesday, said he would consult other officials and this indicates that the positions will not be filled until the heads of all departments have been named and have accepted.

Helpful Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:
I am a girl in my teens. I used to go out with a boy friend whom my parents did not approve of. I have told him of their disapproval. Since then he has not come to my home but he has tried to meet me on the street.

I am not interested in this young man and do not wish to continue this friendship. What shall I do?
PUELLA BONA.
P. simple, isn't it? When you pass him in the street it is not even necessary to bow. You have already given him an explanation for breaking with him. He will probably cease his pursuit, when he realizes that you are in complete agreement with your parents' wishes.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:
I have been going with a boy for some time. One night when he brought me home he asked to kiss me good-night and I consented. That was the first time I've permitted it and it seemed so harmless. Was I wrong? If so, what can I do to let him know I do not make a practice of kissing?

1-2-3.
2-3: There is no need to repeat the episode. You can make it quite evident from your manner that you are not in the habit of permitting such privileges. It is quite unnecessary to allow liberties of any sort, unless two young people are engaged.

A Lamp That Burns 94% Air

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, T. G. Johnson, 609 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill., is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Mothers Owe It
To Their Children
To Be Healthy

There is a real necessity for close companionship between mothers and their children in these modern days, because it is only as a constant and sympathizing companion that a mother can gain the confidence of her children so that she can lend her influence for the upbuilding of their better natures.

Mothers realize this and know, that to be a companion to them they must have the strength to go and do. And almost everywhere you go nowadays you will find mothers using St. Joseph's G. F. P. to build them up and strengthen them.

Among these mothers is Mrs. Florine Esabout, who lives in San Antonio, Texas, at 2506 San Louis St. She says, "I was terribly weak after my last baby came; and it just seemed as though I couldn't regain my strength."

"Then I started using St. Joseph's G. F. P. and I began gaining in strength right away. Now I sleep soundly and have so much strength I get through my work in little of no time and have lots of time to play with my children."

Group of Staff Correspondents at World Centers of Population

International News Service Staff Correspondent

SAN FRANCISCO.—If a man is worth marrying he is worth fighting for, according to Mrs. Virginia Stocker, pretty 21 year old wife of James Stocker, 23, Oakland chauffeur, and mother of Buddy Stocker 2.

One day not so long ago Mrs. Stocker happened to be out for a stroll when, lo and behold, who should she see but her husband, James, walking blithely along with Miss Helen Rowley, 18, pretty blonde telephone operator.

Mrs. Stocker, didn't even hesitate. She grabbed herself a convenient stick and before James and Miss Rowley knew what was happening, Miss Rowley was getting the thrashing of her young life.

"That's what you get for being with my husband," Mrs. Stocker screamed, as she angrily wielded the stick.

As a result of the adventure Miss Rowley had to nurse a bruised lip and numerous welts on her body. Miss Rowley says it was James who was being thrashed and she only got a few stray blows, but Mrs. Stocker says otherwise.

If you don't appreciate classical music you needn't be ashamed of yourself, in the opinion of Lloyd Taylor, representative of a national music concern, who recently made an address before the Oakland Rotary club. And Taylor says, don't let anyone tell you you are suffering from a plebeian affliction. You are just human.

"It is foolish for anyone to scorn a certain type of music," Taylor declares. "Popular music is the kind that gets closest to the people and therefore is of the most value."

"Love of music is a great natural force, and does a great deal toward harmonizing the home and bringing happiness to the common people."

Taylor divides songs into three classes: "Nonsense, such as those referring to the situation of the banana market; smut songs, which refer to red hot papas and other thing, and real heart songs."

The latter, he says, sometimes live for a considerable length of time, establishing records like those of "After the Ball," "The Rosary," and "The End of a Perfect Day."

The fact that there are "too many ships in the world" is largely responsible for the present depression in the shipping business, according to Captain Robert Dollar, 38-year old head of the Dollar Steamship Line, who has just returned to his home in San Francisco after having completed his seventh business trip around the world.

He gave that as one of the principal reasons why the United States shipping board was finding difficulty in persuading shipping men to buy its vessels at prices which would be approved by the American public.

Nursing 'Man o' War's' Children--and Other Champs

THE breeding of fine dogs and horses always has been considered the province of man exclusively, but women are showing that here, as in other spheres once considered peculiarly masculine, the fair sex is just as capable. The pictures at the right show a British noblewoman and a famous American woman who have been conspicuous successes at the business.

And why, indeed, ask feminists, should not women, who are admittedly unequalled by men in the science of rearing children, be equally adept at "rearing" dogs and horses? The watchful care and solicitude necessary to the nurture of fine animals, they say, are essentially "maternal" qualities, and a woman ought to be good at rearing a horse or dog farm.

"Fine theory that won't work out in practice," you may say. But Man o' War and Norwich both hail from Miss Elizabeth Dainierfield's farm near Lexington, Kentucky. And Lady Demetriadi's prize hounds are almost as famous.

Judge Finnell To Succeed Rogers

Judge Woolsey Finnell, of Tuscaloosa, state chairman of the recent democratic campaign, will succeed John A. Rogers as chairman of the Alabama highway department, according to information received here from Montgomery. Judge Finnell, it is said, will have the appointment of Governor-elect Bibb Graves.

In local highway and official circles the appointment of Judge Finnell was received with satisfaction. Chairman Rogers has scores of personal and political friends in this section and his retirement will come as regrettable to them, but since the recent democratic primary, it was anticipated that he would not be named by Governor Graves.

"Captain Dollar spoke hopefully of the intercoastal trade. He pointed out that there was plenty of cargo eastbound, but that development of more cargo from the Atlantic seaboard to the Pacific coast must be worked out.

Members Will Go To Witness Work

Four members of Decatur Chapter No. 38, R. A. M., will leave this afternoon for Huntsville where they have been invited to witness work in the Royal Arch degree. John W. Jones, Wilbur Royer, Robert T. Sheppard and John Baggett will make the trip.

How Doctors Treat Colds And Flu

To break up a cold overnight or to cut short an attack of grippe, influenza, sore throat or tonsillitis, physicians and druggists are now recommending Calotabs, the purified and refined calomel compound tablet that gives you the effects of calomel and salts combined, without the unpleasant effects of either.

One or two Calotabs at bed-time with a swallow of water—that's all. No salts, no nausea nor the slightest interference with your eating, work or pleasure. Next morning your cold has vanished, your system is thoroughly purified and you are feeling fine with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Eat what you please—no danger.

TODAY 12 Years Ago

From The Daily of
November 5, 1914.

Mayor Hardage has made the following appointments to represent New Decatur at the National Congress of Rivers and Harbors: Samuel Blackwell, T. A. Bowles, F. M. Schiller, R. G. Cornor, H. B. Beard, C. J. Hildreth, Judge W. E. Skeggs and W. R. Shelton.

Miss Rebecca Leaningham delighted her school with a tramp to the woods today and a picnic dinner.

Dr. H. D. Greer has returned from a professional trip to Moulton.

Miss Kate Smith of Selma will arrive Saturday to be the guest of Miss Kittie Bibb.

Which, after all, is the greatest factor in an election . . . those who do vote or those who do not?

When a man is found guilty after he has been connected with a slaying and he is sentenced to a year and a day the crime boosters are not the only class to laugh, old man General Public can't help but emit a chuckle.

Now it really is Senator-elect Black and Governor-elect Graves. The titles to be bestowed on these two successful candidates in the democratic primary gave considerable trouble to Alabama newspapers.

President Coolidge traveled aboard a special train to cast his vote for his friends, Senator William M. Butler, but the effort proved in vain. The people of Massachusetts selected his democratic opponent, ex-Senator David I. Walsh.

The Dothan Eagle doubtless will find some more fallen prestige for the press in the failure to get out the vote on election day, which by the way was last Tuesday. Well, this wasn't a press election so far as Alabama was concerned, Graves ran independently of the newspapers.

The Daily is not the only newspaper which has grown tired of the McPherson story. The Nashville Banner says: "How perfectly ridiculous" said Mrs. McPherson of a certain phase of evidence against her. Change that last word to disgusting and let it go for the whole performance."

Very few weeks pass without announcement being made of the location in Alabama of another big industrial plant. Florida and California may continue to wage their war over tourist preference, but Alabama continues to maintain the fastest pace in industrial development and the day will come when Alabama will be wealthier than either Florida or California.

The Hagenbeck-Wallace circus disbanded the other day in Trenton, Tenn. The circus recently played here. Could not some of the circus routines be made so that the show would "break up" in the Twin Cities? In this connection it is interesting to note that some $20,000 changed hands as the final accounts for the season were settled in Trenton. Albany and Decatur would like to get a share of such a payroll.

THE WHOLE TENNESSEE VALLEY MUST GROW FOR US TO PROSPER MOST.

There may be plenty of friendly rivalry between Albany-Decatur and Huntsville, but that condition did not prevent Huntsville people and The Huntsville Daily Times from showing a fine spirit of Tennessee Valley patriotism and rejoicing with us when the Connecticut Mills plant was located here. That is the spirit that wins.—Albany-Decatur Daily.

Quite true, gentlemen and when you realize that the whole of the Tennessee Valley section of north Alabama must grow for us to prosper most as a city and community you can better appreciate why it is that Greater Huntsville and The Daily Times are so anxious for the Twin-Cities and every other part of the Muscle Shoals district to go forward. It all contributes to the success of the whole. Albany-Decatur go get another mill! We are doing it.—Huntsville Daily Times.

GADSDEN TIMES-NEWS WILL BUILD HANDSOME NEW HOME OF ITS OWN.

The Gadsden Times-News announces, as part of the observance of its 60th year of service to that district, that it will build a handsome newspaper plant which, with the equipment, will cost approximately $65,000.

This follows the recent announcement of the Huntsville Daily Times of its plan to erect a 10-story building for its own and public use.

The plans of Alabama publishers indicate not only that the state's communities are growing, but they serve also as an illustration of the esteem in which Alabama newspapers are held by the communities they serve. In the development of Alabama, the press of the state has played and is playing an important part, and it is refreshing to see evidence that the public generally recognizes the advantages of having up-to-date dailies and makes their financial success possible.

WARMER WEATHER PREDICTED, BUT MERCHANTS SELL BLANKETS.

The weather man says warmer weather for North Alabama and Albany-Decatur. Merchants advertise and sell blankets and overcoats. Albany-Decatur apparently is not of fixed opinion regarding the authenticity of the weather report, at least the merchants don't see it that way. Warm weather is still some distance away, you can tell that by the number of medical advertisements specifying cold remedies, physicians' advices and long winded editorials about caring for the cold to prevent flu and pneumonia. Albany-Decatur thought for a while that summer was here to stay, but take it straight, summer is gone for several months to come. It is a great deal safer to rely upon advertisements of blankets, heavy suits, overcoats, than to peruse the weather predictions forecasting warm weather, or the almanac statement that the weather is going to be so-and-so on such-and-such a day. Warm days are a thing of the past for several months yet.

PLENTY OF FOOD PROVIDED FOR COUPLE AT SMALL COST.

Young America, man and woman, will look upon the news from Berkeley, Cal., that plenty of food can be provided for a couple at $23 per month, with favor, that is, "the headline itself will look good. Reading the story the couple will find that the $23 budget is placed after scientific effort, not after shopping effort. A few years ago when everybody was "Having Their Iron Today," and eating in calories, this $23 business might have been a go, but America, young or old, rich or poor, romantic or married, will not view the $23 budget plan with any feeling of whole hearted substantiation. America today is eating in pounds and foodstuffs are going higher on the markets every day. Twenty-three dollars today looks about as healthy as a worm in the barnyard. That material makes good reading matter and is probably the product of much thought on the part of a horn-rimmed addict of theory, but theory and fiction are two very different things, ask any young couple who tried the two as cheap as one theory.

ADVANCE EACH TIME IN STORY OF BRIDGE COMPLETION.

So many dates have been set for the completion of the Tennessee river bridge project that the Albany-Decatur populace is now wondering just when that huge structure will open to travel. Hopes have been high all along that the structure would be opened during the month of January, but with January almost here it is a certainty that the bridge will not be open until some time later than that date. Chairman Rogers stated yesterday that the structure should be completed and opened in June! That's a long way off, yet there are many details, many obstacles, handicaps which the general public does not follow. The public expects service regardless of conditions or circumstances. Take for an instance the lateness of a daily newspaper, the public begins to wonder at once if the force is on the job. Of course the force is on the job, working hard, circumstances over which men have no control have entered into the course of the day and the paper is late, but the public doesn't show any fondness for excuses. The public wants service, regardless.

Whatever date the bridge is completed that date is going to be a big event in local history. Its realization of a long dream, the opening of a trade area, the opening of an arterial highway, the connection of two great states, two good counties, That's worth waiting for a little longer.

THE SITUATION IN THE UNITED STATES SENATE.

Though the general public may care very little about who is who in the United States Senate it is nevertheless interesting to look at the lineup at this time. Complete returns show the next Senate will have 48 Republicans and 47 Democrats and one farmer-labor, Shipstead of Minnesota. Wouldn't that give you cause to laugh?

A similar situation has not appeared in a long while, if ever. That situation is going to cause more than ordinary interest in the halls of the Senate itself even if the general public doesn't realize what is going on up in Washington. Eight of the Republicans are insurgents, that would seem that the strength of the administration has been sapped to some extent. What will be the outcome of Senate disturbances is more than the ordinary mind can fathom. One thing is certain, fights in the United States Senate are going to be in order, political trading will be done with expert finesse, more than one grizzled leader is going to find that the road is extremely difficult to negotiate.

Reading between the lines it would seem that the lineup in the Senate might cause more havoc for the South, a Democratic stronghold, than it will do good. Party lines will be held taut henceforth, where heretofore there may have been a chance to find a little slack here, there or elsewhere. From now on its going to be a fight to the finish, Republicans are not going to relinquish their hold on the Senate if they happen to know anything about it.

COUNCIL MEETING TONIGHT MAY BRING UP OLD SCORES.

The Albany city council is meeting tonight, meeting for the purpose of discussing new business and perhaps bringing up old scores—Second avenue and Echols Hill.

Tired of that subject? So is the Daily, but so far it has been a case of much ado about nothing. Second avenue and Echols Hill remain thorns in the side, regardless of all the words and ink spread abroad on the ticklish subject.

For once, the Daily does not approve the plan for bothering the avenue at this time, here it is the fall season, rapidly entering winter, buying is growing brisk and there is little reason for tearing up the street at this juncture. However, there are winter months coming, January, February, March, and if engineers approve plans for repairing the avenue and the weather isn't too cold to effect the material placed on the street the Daily urges that the avenue question be placed for settlement during those three months of 1927. The question could be settled very amicably now, with the order to do the work at a later date. Get the order for the work now and put an end to the criticism.

As for Echols Hill that hill remains a project for the city of Albany, seemingly. The state may have selected to do the work, but the state hasn't done the work and that's that. It's the move of the city and there is need for repair of that hill. If your stoker doesn't show up in the morning to stoke the furnace do you wait in bed until the next morning hoping that he may show up? Doubtless you shuffle out of bed, in a temper of course, and go fire the furnace yourself, get things started and then off to town. But you don't wait until the next day. The state hasn't fixed Echols Hill and the state may not show up tomorrow morning to get things going, so the job falls on our own shoulders.

These questions might be settled and settled with favor for the council in the eyes of the people. Certainly these projects will be a boon to the cities. Let's remove these old scores and get down to business for 1927. Repair or pave these sources of discontent, at least invite people to the city with a good road and after they get here present them with other good streets, they'll feel a whole lot better over their visit here.

Happy Careless Country.
Nervous High Finance.
The Low Cost 2 Year Old.
Death and Ice Water.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE. (Copyright, 1926, by The Star Co., For Albany-Decatur Daily).

In offering Mr. Brisbane's daily editorials The Daily does not necessarily concur with his opinions, but offers them as the sentiments of the highest paid editorial writer in this country.

HAPPY, they say, is the country that has no history, little has happened to worry the inhabitants.

Happy, also, presumably, the nation that does not take its elections seriously, the citizens not agitated about public questions.

ELECTIONS yesterday which might mean inability of the administration to carry out its plans, leaves the average citizen as cold as a bulletin from the agricultural department on raising sweet potatoes.

THE little man makes five dollars a day, seventy-five Americans tell the tax department they make more than three thousand dollars a day, $1,000,000 a year. At least three of us Americans own a thousand million dollars.

Why should elections worry us, or interest us much. Let lawyers look after the big men and the corporations, while the little fellows trust to luck.

WE have no national policy, and absolutely no systematic, modern national defense. We are as unfit as Haiti to fight a modern nation. The world at large hates us, or feels toward us as a hungry fox feels toward a fat goose. But should we worry? God will take care of us probably. He always has done so.

Anyhow, worrying or taking violent interest in elections would do us little good, the difference between the men that want to be elected is so slight.

WALL STREET gentlemen were quiet and conservative before election day, and will continue quiet until they know definitely what happened yesterday.

Wall street, which really buys and sells the nation and its values, acts as though it were dealing in politics.

A democratic senate would not put Pennsylvania down from a seven per cent basis, with Atterbury president, or melt away the four hundred million cash surplus that Gary has piled up for United States Steel.

HIGH FINANCE is as nervous as a man with a load of plaster statues on his head. The democrats come out from behind the door and say "boo" oftener than republicans. But neither of them mean anything by it, and neither lacks deep affection for high finance.

That institution owns two parties, and usually prefers to use the republican one because it never pretends to be independent. But one is as "safe and sound" as the other.

HUMAN beings cost money to raise and many are not worth it all, the imperfect-being all preserved, and children of the ablest made worthless by their fathers' money success. California's state board of health says a two year old baby costs less per day than at any other age, less sickness than at any time, less expense in other ways.

FROM 2 to 20 years cost steadily rises. After 60 it falls off, fewer teeth, eat less, clothes last longer, life runs quietly and nonsense is calming down. All interesting, but the state board does not tell us why we live at all, or why it was necessary to put us here, in the first place.

THE death of Houdini puzzles Conan Doyle because Houdini never drank, never smoked. Some doctors would say that helps explain his death. Able men told E. H. Harriman he would have a longer life had he drunk light beer, and relaxed.

They even say that teetotalism is safe only for those that do very little thinking, and do that gently.

That's a terrible insult to prohibition and ice water, but that is what able scientists say. They say also, by the way, that a sure path to early death is bootleg whiskey.

A CORRESPONDENT says it is not safe to enter Russia with dress clothes. Such proof of capitalistic leanings might cost your life. We shudder that that, forgetting that in many districts a congressman would lose his job if he appeared in such regalia, and once a United States senator proved his rugged manhood by wearing shoes without socks.

THIS is much more important than socks, dress suits or elections. Our North American continent is said to be sinking about one-sixth of an inch per year. And a commission will devote twenty-five years to studying the problem, five years less time than Darwin devoted to studying earth worms and their power to raise the land.

One-sixth of an inch yearly seems small. But that would be a foot and a half every century and with such a sinking Pike's Peak would be below the Atlantic ocean in much less time than it took the horse to change to a one-toed animal.

THE Reverend Dr. Straton, ardent fundamentalist, objects to the Reverend Dr. Fosdick, who doesn't believe Joshua once stopped the sun in its journey around the earth, possibly because the sun doesn't go around the earth.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, Jr., sits under Dr. Fosdick, so that Reverend Straton attacks Mr. Rockefeller, for not believing that every Baptist should be baptized all the way up to the top of his head and a little higher.

MR. ROCKEFELLER might reply, but doesn't that he is building apartments to rent at reasonable prices to those that can't afford high prices. That every apartment has its bath, so every tenant can enjoy complete immersion three times a day. Dr. Fosdick will tell Dr. Straton that complete immersion was more important in old days, when nobody had a bath tub, and somebody had to set the good example.

IN ANCIENT days the London Daily Telegraph solemnly discussed "is marriage a failure." These days of bootleg whiskey and rampant flapperdom, makes it difficult to judge just what marriage really is. Mrs. Herman A. Williams

Alabama Talk

COTTON CONDITION NOT SO BAD AS MANY ALARM. IST SEEM TO THINK

If cotton consumption should continue at what it was before the war, or even at the average since the war, it is to be admitted that the present estimated crop of 17,000,000 bales, plus the carry over, would spell financial disaster for the South, and depression for the country generally. But consumption is growing every year in the United States, and the foreign mills will be so much better able to operate successfully on the cotton that they are now buying at existing prices that it is altogether probable that the price will have made a considerable advance before the 1926 crop shall have been gathered.

As a matter of fact, however, statisticians who are students of cotton have risked their reputations on the statement that the United States Department of Agriculture has overestimated the amount of cotton that will be ginned this year. The department's estimates seem to have been predicted on the increased acreage planted to cotton, plus the favorable weather conditions that were conducive to its fructification, without taking into consideration the fact that weather conditions, labor shortage and a broken morale on the part of the farmers themselves would contribute to the curtailment of the possible yield. It is inevitable, in fact, that much cotton will be left in the fields, and it is conservatively believed that the department of agriculture has overestimated the production by approximately 2,000,000 bales.

But let us admit that the crop is as large as the government has estimated. That being true, it does not necessarily follow that the South will have been paralyzed financially and its buying power reduced to a minimum. Mr. Marcus E. Foster, for many years a newspaper publisher in Houston, Texas, calls attention to the fact that this means more money distributed to pickers, who will get $150,000,000; to ginners, who will receive $113,000,000; to the compressors, $13,000,000; to the railroads, $70,000,000; to brokers and factors, $22,000,000; to warehouse and insurance companies, $7,000,000, or an estimated total disbursement of $375,000,000 on a 17,000,000 bale crop.

PARTY AT HOME OF MRS. ROSS.

A vanishing party was given on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. B. A. Ross including Mesdames D. O. Nowman, Clifton, Penney, W. F. Simpson, O. L. Reed, Thomas Ryan, Herbert McKelvey and George Phillips.

From 3 p. m. to 5 p. m. music, games and old-time quilting were featured, the quilt being a Missionary quilt that was worked on by quite a number of members of the Missionary Society who were present.

At the close of the afternoon delightful refreshments were served to those present as follows: Mrs. George Phillips, Mrs. Walker Price, Mrs. O. Reed, Mrs. R. L. Ford, Mrs. C. L. Jones, Mrs. W. F. Simpson, Mrs. D. M. Fleckwood, Mrs. G. H. McLean, Mrs. Frank Gray, Mrs. P. J. Blizard, Mrs. R. W. Newsom, Mrs. R. E. Wardlow, Mrs. D. O. Newman, Mrs. Crow, Mrs. A. C. Walker, Mrs. Thomas Ryan, Mrs. G. E. McCullough, Mrs. H. E. McKelvey, Mrs. Charles Hardiman and Mrs. E. E. Clem.

This party completed this end of the chain of vanishing parties and a very enjoyable afternoon was spent.

MRS. JONES CLUB HOSTESS.

The Silk Stocking Club met this week with Mrs. T. M. Jones, Jr., at her home on East Vine street and she had two tables of supplementary guests including: Mrs. Frank Pruett, Mrs. A. Perollo, Mrs. B. B. Gerner, Mrs. John McGhee, Mrs. Bonsonby Kyle, Mrs. H. M. Gilbert, Mrs. Robert Stuart Banks, and Mrs. A. C. Bailey.

Interesting games of the club were played and at the close of these the guest prize was presented Mrs. Perollo, the club trophy to Mrs. S. E. Patterson and the consolation, given on a cut, to Mrs. Garner Pride.

A very delicious salad course was served by the hostess late in the afternoon.

THURSDAY ROKK CLUB.

Mrs. S. N. Garnett entertained the Thursday Rook Club at her home on Grant street. Lovely clay and enamelware were used to decorate the home.

A guest prize, offered for top score, was won by Mrs. J. M. Hatfield. After the games of rook had been enjoyed, the hostess passed plates of tempting fruit salad. Members and guests present were Mrs. Spence, Mrs. E. R. Wolfe, Mrs. E. C. Price, Mrs. C. J. Randolph, Mrs. I. V. Timberlake, Mrs. D. P. Stinson, Mrs. J. M. Hatfield and Mrs. W. A. Schaffer.

CELEBRATE 50TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

Mr. and Mrs. P. N. Hough of Lacey's Spring, will celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary on next Sunday. Several friends in Albany-Decatur have been extended an invitation to attend a dinner in honor of the occasion.

VANISHING PARTY.

Mrs. George Jackson will be hostess at a vanishing party on Friday afternoon at her home.

MRS. SMITH HOSTESS.

Mrs. W. R. Smith entertained her quota at a vanishing party on Thursday afternoon. Her guests were Mrs. W. R. Shelton, Mrs. James Duncan Hunter and Mrs. Rothfus.

VANISHING PARTY.

Mrs. Tom Wiley, Mrs. Ben Hill, and Mrs. Jetty Ryan will have a vanishing party on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Wiley on Fifth avenue West.

Conqueror and Dreamer

By Fanny Darrell.

A ZURE-BLUE eyes set on further victories, the Conqueror takes her place beside her less fortunate sister, the Dreamer. Confident of further successes she holds fast to her gleaming sword and meditates.

Will her opponent be dark or fair, tall or short? Will she yield with good grace and kneel to the conqueror, or taken of her beauty as so many have done before?

These are the thoughts flitting through the ingenious mind of the lovely victor always ready for battle.

And the sad-eyed dreamer who has only a book of tales for sword? What of her? Unlike the conqueror, she has little confidence. She has not yet won in the battle of Love and she is afraid to try again.

But an impartial observer would counsel her to drop her fears and sail forth to war. For she has deadly weapons at her command. Eyes like the dusk of a Summer's day are more penetrating than arrows, and serve a dual purpose. Hair as fine as flax proves a net more inescapable than barbed wire, and there is no camouflage about a rosy mouth.

So put your dreams behind you, Fair Lady, and array yourself for battle!

Southern Travel May Be Changed With Huge Huntsville Project

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., Nov. 4.—(AP)—Huntsville capital and the Mountain Heights Development company have undertaken an enterprise destined to completely change the Southern map for the handling of tourist travel, natives of this city believe, in the proposed erection of a modern 300-room hotel on the summit of Monte Sano in northern Alabama, and the construction of a boulevard across the mountain from Lee highway on Big Cove mountain.

The first unit of the big hotel will include 106 rooms in addition to lobby, dining room, specialty shops and general conveniences found in the modern hotel. More than a quarter of a million dollars will be required for the building of this first unit, including furnishings. It is estimated that it will be above $275,000.

Early developments will embrace the beautifying of some 80 acres of land immediately adjacent to the proposed site for the new structure.

The R. H. Hunt Company, Chattanooga, have been employed as the architects. W. L. Williams Company, who figured largely in the development of Hollywood, Fla., is in the employ of the Mountain Heights company and will supervise the general development of the mountain properties. The company is planning to proceed with the building of the boulevard across the mountain top.

Keen interest in the new project is forthcoming from such cities as St. Louis, New Orleans, Memphis, Birmingham, Nashville and others throughout the South, Huntsville authorities declare.

BAPTIST PASTOR STILL BUILDING

Pastor Hopes He Will Build 50 Churches Before Retiring

CADSDEN, Ala., Nov. 4.—(AP)—The term "a church building pastor" has significance when applied to Dr. N. O. Patterson, Baptist pastor-architect, Birmingham, who in his sixty-fifth year is supervising the construction of his thirty-sixth church. The new edifice of the First Baptist congregation now being erected at Gadsden. When his fiftieth church building is completed he thinks he may be ready to retire.

Since coming to Alabama 11 years ago the Baptist minister, who is a native of Wayneborough, Pa., has had the personal supervision of the building of churches at Atmore, Canoe, Tusculum, Florida, Tuscaloosa, Gullin, Attalla, Altosna, and Gadsden. During this period he also built a small church at Clear Springs, Fla. This undoubtedly establishes a record in Alabama in the church building industry.

Patterson has devised plans for churches in every state in the union with the exception of five. He not only drew the plans but had personal charge of the construction work of churches in the states of Pennsylvania, Wyoming, Wisconsin, Illinois, Florida and Alabama.

In several instances Dr. Patterson was pastor of the church at the time the structures were being erected under his direction. In addition to his architectural work and building enterprises he has baptized more than 2,000 persons and has been very active as an evangelistic worker, both as a preacher and singer. He went through school on a work-study basis and graduated in architecture, taking up this profession before entering the ministry.

The general design of the new church at Gadsden in Grecian classic. It will have the largest auditorium of any Baptist church in the state and probably the South. It is believed. The building will have a seating capacity of 1,000 persons. The Sunday school will be thoroughly modern. The structures will be finished in gray face brick and Alabama stone.

Dr. Patterson predicts the structure will be standing for centuries, barring earthquakes, cyclones and similar catastrophes.

Not a street car was in sight;
The sun was shining brightly,
For it rained all day that night.
Twas a Summer's day in Winter
The rain was snowing fast,

DOPE STILL TAKES IT ON THE RUN

Alabama Favored, Georgia To Defeat Auburn, Vandy To Win, Prediction

Get on your earphones, kiddies, and listen to this weekly bedtime narrative. Last week, you're not interested in what happened last week of course, but it always does good to point out the advantage gained, giving prior claim to superiority. Last week, we repeat it, we elicited about 75 or 80 per cent correct in the week-end predictions. This week an improvement is hoped for, but the patient isn't likely to improve any more this year. Thanksgiving is close and all the big elevens are now playing the big elevens, things are so even that a flip of a coin is about as decisive as working this thing out with pencil and paper. Anyhow, let's get off to a flying start; here are the predictions:

South
Alabama 28, Kentucky 7.
Purman 14, Mercer 3.
L. S. U. 20, Arkansas 0.
V. P. I. 23, South Carolina 9.
Florida 26, Clemson 0.
Michigan Aggies 21, Centre 0.
Georgia 14, Auburn 7.
Howard 7, Chattanooga 6.
Vanderbilt 13, Ga Tech 6.
Tulane 18, Miss. Aggies 10.
N. C. U. 12, V. M. I. 7.
Tennessee 10, Sewanee 6.
W & L 13, Virginia 0.

East
Princeton 18, Harvard 13.
Navy 20, West Va. West 6.
LaFayette 14, Rutgers 6.
Georgetown 12, Syracuse 6.
Dartmouth 20, Boston U. 0.
Pitt 9, West Va. 6.
Yale 26, Maryland 0.
Columbia 28, W. & M. 6.
Army 24, V. & M. 0.
Penn 12, Penn State 7.
N. Y. U. 6, Carnegie 0.
W. & J. 19, Ethany 6.
Michigan 14, Wisconsin 0.
Northwestern 18, Purdue 0.
Minnesota 13, Iowa 7.
Notre Dame 23, Indiana 0.
Missouri 12, Oklahoma 7.
Now, so far as the far west is concerned the names of the teams are hardly recognizable in this part of the country, much less the strength of the elevens. So we'll forget all about the western games we'll miss enough in the South and East anyway.

It wouldn't be a bad idea for some ardent fan or fans to get together one of these cool Thursday nights and figure out the score of the Saturday games, address an envelope to the Daily and watch the prediction go into print. All you have to do is sign your name so the prediction and send along we'll be glad to give your guess prominence on the regular sporting page. Won't hurt to guess wrong, so did Coolidge when he voted for Butler.

This column is conducted once a week to instruct the public how not to bet, but remember that the predictions haven't been under 70 per cent this year, so be careful in placing your money entirely against the guesses in this column.

Ladies! Your club year books should be done neatly and attractively. Ask a Daily representative to call and bid on the job.

Call Albany 46 if you need stationery. Letterheads, envelopes, bond or rag, the Daily keeps lots in stock and can give them to you on short notice.

LIMESTONE FAIR LIKELY TO BUILD

New Grandstand Is Probable For Fair Association

By D. L. ROSENAU, Jr.
It is said that the Limestone county fair association is quite likely to make plans for the construction of a new grandstand for the 1927 fair when the annual meeting of the stockholders is held within the course of the next few days. During the past summer a new floral hall and stables were erected as well as a number of minor improvements, but the condition of the present grandstand which seats several thousand persons and which is in slightly dilapidated condition demands immediate attention, and it is the general report and belief that action in regard to this matter will be taken at the next meeting, as there was quite a sentiment among the stockholders for such action last year. It is not as yet known how the fair fared as a financial venture during the present season; last year was one of the most successful in the history of the association, but the low price of cotton this season did much in the way of reducing attendance.

FEW SUITS BEING FILED
Limestoneians must be living in loving charity and perfect harmony with neighbors, according to Hon. Geo. L. Sherrill, clerk of the Circuit court for this county, who reports that very few law suits have been filed so far in his court most of those filed being immediately compromised by the parties thereto. Litigation is said among the legal fraternity to be at the lowest ebb in years, and criminal cases likewise are conspicuous mainly through their absence both in interior and circuit courts.

SCRAMBLE FOR LICENSES.

Most of the regular routine work of the local Probate office has been crowded for space this week through the rush for hunting licenses. Both non-residents and resident licenses appear to be in great demand, and it would seem that after laying by their crops the farmers are training their marksmanship in the off-season.

OLIVER STRESSES COTTON IN TALK

Miss McKay Urges Club Support In Red Cross

Stressing the needs prevalent in the cotton situation over the Southland, Congressman W. B. Oliver of the sixth Alabama district, addressed the Kiwanis club in regular weekly session last night at the Y. M. C. A.

Congressman Oliver's talk went straight toward the cotton pooling plan and the need for a cut in cotton production for the coming year. His talk was full of common sense in the present situation and reserved an optimistic view in case farmers took the opportunity offered in pooling plans and in crop reductions.

Miss McKay, Montgomery, called the attention of the club to the needs of the Red Cross the work of the organization and the coming drive in the Twin Cities. She asked the moral support of the club.

TIDE FAVORED ON BATTLE EVE

Kentucky And 'Bama To Start Their Strongest

UNIVERSITY, Ala., Nov. 5. — Alabama's undefeated Crimson Tide will seek to add its sixth conference victory of the year against the Kentucky Wildcats at Birmingham Saturday afternoon. The Crimson squad will leave here late Friday afternoon for the Magic City. Only a light workout will be held at Denny Field that afternoon.

Feeling as fit as they have this season, the Tide will go into battle a favorite to win and are going to try and earn a margin of victory as soon as possible in the first half. That is said with all due consideration of the strength of the Kentuckians, but Saturday's game will be a close one and the team that gets the jump on the other will probably win the game. Birmingham is laying plans to entertain a crowd of approximately 12,000 or more. Much more than 1,300 fans are expected down from the Blue Grass country. Large delegations from surrounding cities are also expected and the entire student body of Alabama with their Million-Dollar band will be on hand. Kentucky's bus-coated band is also going to be there.

Both teams will start their strongest line-up. Alabama is expected to start Captain Barnes, Brown, Caldwell and Rovera in the backfield with Enis, Winslett and Holmes on the line. Kentucky's opening line-up is expected to have Jenkins, Captain Smith, Ross and perhaps Mohney in the backfield while Pence, DeHaven, Schult, Phipps and others will be in the line.

Albany Team Is In Poor Shape

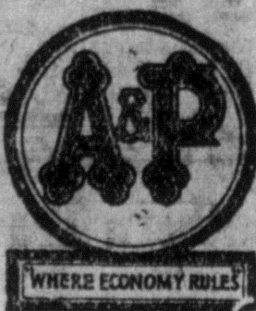

Albany III team entered the Sheffield battle this afternoon conceding only on outside chance to win, the local team was in the poorest physical shape of the year. An epidemic of boils has hampered practice all this week and several regulars have lost chances at practice. Scholastic worries overshadow several of the first string. Thrasher was played at center for the first time Thursday afternoon, both Terry and Coggins being out.

THE BEST THING HE EVER USED

Another Well-Known Birmingham Man Says That Herb Juice Relieved Him of Chronic Case of Constipation From Which He Suffered for 15 Long Years.

"Before I used your splendid medicine, Herb Juice, I think I had about as bad a case of stomach trouble, gas stomach and constipation as any could have and still keep going," said Mr. A. J. Thedford, well and favorably known tailor who resides at 7205 First Ave., Birmingham, Ala., when he called to see the Herb Juice man.

MR. A. J. THEDFORD

"I was in a terrible condition," continued Mr. Thedford. "I was just tired and worn out and run down generally and had headache and pains across my back. No matter what I ate it seemed that I could not digest it. As soon as the food reached my stomach it would ferment, causing me to suffer great pain and a full, tight feeling from gas. I was also dreadfully constipated and had been for 15 long years and while I have taken practically everything I could hear of I never seemed to get any relief. Some time ago I began taking Herb Juice and I must say that the medicine has given me more relief than I ever dreamed I would get. In fact, I feel better today than I have in several years. I have found Herb Juice to be the greatest laxative and system purifier that I have ever used and through its mild and gentle action on the bowels it purifies one's whole system. I think your Herb Juice is a wonderful medicine. In fact the best I have ever used and I have tried many a one in the past 15 years. I am glad to make this statement in behalf of this wonderful remedy for it has given me more relief than any one thing I have ever tried."

SYNOPSIS

Barbara Baxter, a federal detective, catches Jack Fairfax bootlegging, but Bill Grimm, although his enemy, saves him from being jailed. Fairfax becomes a fighter in New York, knocking out Fairfax's man, Pansy Pilkington, friend of Bill's, in finding New York a hard place to make a stage success. Bill is knocked cold by knockout Keely in one round.

with my right eye if this trap was ours and—
I was interrupted by a glass falling out of her hand and splintering in the sink. "Just when I might have got somewhere!" I picked out the pieces of Barbara's glass and put them in my own. It was only a scratch, but she made a big to-do over it, peroxide and iodine loving the water.

"Have you ever thought of getting married, Barbara?" I said in a offhand way.

"Er—how is Pansy? Have you seen her lately?" she asks me quickly, crimson from neck to forehead.

I was glad at that point to hurriedly change the subject by telling Barbara I'd made up my mind to return to the ring.

Once I'd let the feline out of the sack, I plunged ahead and explained how and why I'd reached that decision after my battle with myself the night before.

"Bill, if you fight Keely the way you've just talked to me you cannot lose!" she cries.

And my spirits, easily raised or lowered, instantly topped all altitude records. Barbara was for me, and I was positive I'd love knockout Keely like a carpet!

Well, Butch Ford and Left Hook O'Brien was overjoyed at my turn to the gentle art of punching heads, but my ambitious plans to

I got quite a shock to find Jack Fairfax leaving.

with a wicked grin. "Or is your business with our charming Pansy too urgent?"

"I wouldn't haul you across the street if you cried your eyes out, you big boloney!" I snarled. "Me and you will even yet on that dough you won from me and if you don't think so you're crazy."

"When you find out what I'm going to do with your money you'll take arsenic, Grimm!" says Fairfax. "My regards to the fair Barbara—if you are still persona grata with her!"

Honest to Baltimore, it was all I could do to keep from choosing him, but instead I shoved past him and ran up the steps. I was still wondering what he meant by that remark about my money when Pansy greeted me.

"Yes, I just run into Fairfax," I says, reading her expression with no trouble, "and I can't understand why you don't give that cake eater the air and be done with it! You know he's always looking for the best of it and—"

Something in her eyes cut me off short and reminded me I was still holding her hand. So I dropped it. "In the one which spoke out of turn," I grin, kind of sorry and shamefaced. "Excuse me, Pansy, but I'm pretty low today. You know how the breaks have been going against me, and that knockout Keely thing's been preying on my mind. I guess Barbara was right when she called me a failure. That's what I am—just a flop!"

"Barbara called you a failure?" fumes Pansy, jumping up. "Well, I love that! The idea of her riding you now, when you should be backed up and sent forth with fresh confidence in yourself. She ought to be ashamed of herself. You poor boy—what you need is cheering up, not the razzerberry!"

I went right to my room in the hotel, locked the door and spent the night there alone.

I knew I had to make some kind of a move, and at the witching hour of midnight, my head whirling from wrestling with matters, I decided to take one more shot at the sport I craved another piece of. I knocked the killer which had knocked me for a loop with a punch. Deep down in my soul I felt that if I could stop Keely, the first person or thing on earth to shake my confidence in myself, the world was mine for the taking!

Having made my decision I hopped gayly in bed and slept like Rip Van Winkle till the phone woke me up at eight the next morning. The voice which acts on me like catnip on tabby was Barbara's:

"You're going to be my guest today—be at my apartment promptly at twelve," she tells me.

I was at her apartment promptly at eleven.

Well, boys and girls, Barbara's aunt which shared the flat with her was elsewhere, and I'll state Barbara threw one grand party. After we'd ruined a keen repast I stepped out of character and climbed into one of her cute little aprons to help her do kitchen police. In the midst of my hired girl's duties I suddenly bust out laughing.

"What's the joke?" asks Barbara, handing me a platter to massage.

"Listen, Barbara," I whisper, standing close to her, "I'd part with my right eye if this trap was ours and—"

I was interrupted by a glass falling out of her hand and splintering in the sink. "Just when I might have got somewhere!" I picked out the pieces of Barbara's glass and put them in my own. It was only a scratch, but she made a big to-do over it, peroxide and iodine loving the water.

"Have you ever thought of getting married, Barbara?" I said in a offhand way.

"Er—how is Pansy? Have you seen her lately?" she asks me quickly, crimson from neck to forehead.

I was glad at that point to hurriedly change the subject by telling Barbara I'd made up my mind to return to the ring.

Once I'd let the feline out of the sack, I plunged ahead and explained how and why I'd reached that decision after my battle with myself the night before.

"Bill, if you fight Keely the way you've just talked to me you cannot lose!" she cries.

And my spirits, easily raised or lowered, instantly topped all altitude records. Barbara was for me, and I was positive I'd love knockout Keely like a carpet!

Well, Butch Ford and Left Hook O'Brien was overjoyed at my turn to the gentle art of punching heads, but my ambitious plans to

with a wicked grin. "Or is your business with our charming Pansy too urgent?"

"I wouldn't haul you across the street if you cried your eyes out, you big boloney!" I snarled. "Me and you will even yet on that dough you won from me and if you don't think so you're crazy."

"When you find out what I'm going to do with your money you'll take arsenic, Grimm!" says Fairfax. "My regards to the fair Barbara—if you are still persona grata with her!"

Honest to Baltimore, it was all I could do to keep from choosing him, but instead I shoved past him and ran up the steps. I was still wondering what he meant by that remark about my money when Pansy greeted me.

"Yes, I just run into Fairfax," I says, reading her expression with no trouble, "and I can't understand why you don't give that cake eater the air and be done with it! You know he's always looking for the best of it and—"

Something in her eyes cut me off short and reminded me I was still holding her hand. So I dropped it. "In the one which spoke out of turn," I grin, kind of sorry and shamefaced. "Excuse me, Pansy, but I'm pretty low today. You know how the breaks have been going against me, and that knockout Keely thing's been preying on my mind. I guess Barbara was right when she called me a failure. That's what I am—just a flop!"

"Barbara called you a failure?" fumes Pansy, jumping up. "Well, I love that! The idea of her riding you now, when you should be backed up and sent forth with fresh confidence in yourself. She ought to be ashamed of herself. You poor boy—what you need is cheering up, not the razzerberry!"

I went right to my room in the hotel, locked the door and spent the night there alone.

I knew I had to make some kind of a move, and at the witching hour of midnight, my head whirling from wrestling with matters, I decided to take one more shot at the sport I craved another piece of. I knocked the killer which had knocked me for a loop with a punch. Jail Sentences Replace Fines In Wet Cases; Federal Courts Sentence

Convictions For Dry Law Violations Increase From 4,193 To 44,022, Figures Made Public Show.

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON. — Prison sentences apparently are replacing cash fines as punishment for prohibition violators.

Figures just made public by Attorney General Sargent show that in the year ending June 30, sentences aggregating 5,666 years were inflicted by federal courts.

Prison sentences were 1,100 years in excess of the preceding year, while fines amounting to $7,336,000 were $400,000 less.

Total convictions numbered 44,022, an increase of 4,193 over the year before. Progress was made in the effort to clear up court dockets as evidenced by the fact that the number of pending cases decreased 1,925.

The policy of the prohibition forces, headed by General Lincoln C. Andrews, dry chief, to avoid the institution of cases unless the odds favored conviction, likewise seemed to have had effect. In the face of a greater number of convictions there were 2,869 less cases instituted.

Liquor Injunctions
During the year a total of 3,669 permanent injunctions were approved by federal courts, a greater number by 1,190 than the year before. A large number of other injunctions closed establishments charged with liquor law violations for periods ranging from six months to several years.

Convictions were heaviest in one wet district and two that have been considered headquarters for the moonshine industry. The eastern judicial district of Kentucky, in which lies counties such as "Bloody" Breath and others famed for their feuds and for the fact that in these environs were laid some of the famous stories of John Fox, Jr., established a record for convictions with 2,278 sentences aggregated 300 years.

In the eastern district of New York 2,110 convictions were recorded, although total sentences ran but 17 years.

The Southern West Virginia district, over which presides Federal Judge McClintock, arch enemy of the liquor traffic, took first place in the nation with the length of sentences. Convictions numbered 2,242 in this district, violators having been sentenced to a total of 481 years.

Most of those sentenced by Judge McClintock entered pleas of guilty. Few were acquitted who elected to stand trial.

The Northern district of New York captured first prize for the amount of fines, which totalled $968,759 for 1,637 convictions.

In Close Race
Chicago and New York City ran a close race for the distinction of having been placed under the most permanent injunctions. The New York figure was 634 and Chicago 632.

Kansas, if prohibition conviction may be taken as a criterion, was the driest state in America last year. There were but ten prohibition convictions in that state with fines totalling $1,525. No prison sentences were imposed in Kansas.

The third district of Alaska had 11 convictions, one year sentence and $150 fine, but officials explained that this country is sparsely populated without elaborate law enforcement agencies.
